

FUNDRAISING IDEAS FOR YOUR DRY JULY WORKPLACE TEAM

WE WON'T DRINK TO THAT!

DRY JULY
NZ TRUST

1. MIX UP A MOCKTAIL OR TWO

With so many great non-alcoholic spirits, beers and wines now available in stores and online, you can easily create some tasty mocktail creations for your workplace.

Think of some creative mocktail names and get mixing your alcohol-free concoctions. Ask for a gold coin donation from your workmates going towards your Dry July Workplace Team's fundraising.

Perhaps you can create a few mocktails and ask your workmates to vote on the best one?

2. UGLY JUMPER COMPETITION

Find your most fantastically outrageous (or just plain ugly) jumper and wear it for the day. Swap it for a t-shirt if the weather or office is on the warmer side.

$5 to enter, ask everyone to vote for the ugliest jumper/t-shirt, tally the votes from the office with the winner taking the glory (and the entry fee going to the Dry July Workplace Team as a donation).

3. FRIDAY NIGHT FILM FESTIVAL

Ditch the office drinks and host your own Dry July Film Festival. Start with a film from the 80s, then 90s, 00s, then 10s for 4 weeks of fine films. The cover charge is a donation to the Dry July Workplace Team.

(Remember to check any permissions required for screening movies in a public setting)

4. UNDERCOVER BROTHER/SISTER

List a task you'd like done for you (the job should take no more than an hour).

Put it in a jar for a $10 donation to your Dry July Workplace Team.

Your workmates draw the task and do it for you without revealing who has completed it. Job done!

5. OFFICE CAR WASH

$15 for a clean and a chamois dry for another $5!

It's a great way to get active and have some fun with your Dry July team mates.

6. GUESS THE BOTTLE CAP COMP

Fill a jar with bottle caps (you can find these online or at selected large grocery retailers) and start a guessing competition. $2 per guess. The winner can be awarded with a prize donated by one of your business partners.

7. DRY JULY SOUP KITCHEN

Winter is a great time for hearty, warming soup. Get your Dry July Workplace Team to cook up two or three soups (don't forget a vegetarian option) and serve at lunchtime for $5 a bowl (maybe throw in a bread roll too).

8. COFFEE WITH THE BOSS

Auction off an hour of time with your business leader.
They pay for the coffee. The time spent chatting is priceless.

9. OFFICE OPPORTUNITY SHOP

Remember that vegetable spiraliser you've not used for a year? Be it clothing, surplus stock, craft items, household goods and appliances, you'd be surprised what might others may be looking for that you just happen to have. All funds raised from your office opportunity shop will be donated to your Dry July Workplace Team. Any items left over from the fundraiser can be donated to your local charity store.

10. RAFFLE OFF A DRY JULY HAMPER

Ask for contributions to the hamper from the office or your suppliers. Load it full of useful and tasty items. Schedule the draw for the first working day in August. What a nice way to close out your workplace's Dry July!

11. SKILLS THAT THRILL

Everyone has a skill or talent, be it the ability to play an instrument, speak a different language, juggle, tackle an IT challenge or organise Marie Kondo style.

Ask your colleagues to list their special skill and then auction off an hour of their time to help another. It's amazing what you might discover about your workmates.

12. GUESS THE BABY PHOTO COMP

Create a photo gallery of baby pics of your colleagues. Match the baby photo to the current employee, with each entry a set donation to the Dry July Workplace Team.

Bank the donations, reveal the winner (who got the most matches correct) and award them with a prize sourced from a business partner.

13. GUESS THE PET'S OWNER COMP

Similar to 'Guess the Baby Photo Comp', create a gallery of pets and match the owner to the pet.

Again, have a set donation to your Dry July Workplace Team per entry.

14. BAKE AND SHAKE

Everyone loves a bake sale, particularly for the office. Sweet or savoury, a little tantalising home made item for a small donation makes everyone happy.
